AROUND SANTIAGO.

Here are some pen pictures by C. E. Hands, the correspondent of the Daily Mail. He saw the fighting before Santiago—from what he describes as a "front row seat," on El Pozo. Here, while watching a battery demolish a Spanish blockhouse and drive the Spanish from the trenches, Mr. Hands had his first experience with schrapnel.

"Bang! went our gun. I clapped my glasses to my eyes and watched the distant trench to see the Spaniards bustle away. Boom! went some other gun at a distance. Before there was time to wonder what or where it was there came a sound in the air like the hiss of some awful firework serpent. It filled the entire atmosphere. As it approached the hiss became a shrill whistle, and the whistle a terrifying scream.

"Schrapnel!" cried an officer as he threw himself on his face.

"Crack! went something overhead, and cries of consternation came from the Cuban rendezvous in the ruined mill at the foot of the hill. Boom! again, scream, whistle, crack; down we all went on our faces as close to the ground as we could.

"Field hospital, quick!" yelled some one from the battery.

"Scream again; this was awful.

"The little cluster of spectators had separated at the first shot. We ran around for such shelter as the lee side of the hill afforded. As speedily as possible, considering the difficulties of the ground and the burning heat of the sun, I made my way back to a spot which, while not exact the right of it and somewhere to the left of it. Then we saw the anti come scrambling down the hill again. They had taken a position which they had not the force to hold. But a moment or two and up they scrambled again. more of them, more quickly than before, and up the other face of the hill to the left went other lines, and the ridge was taken and the blockhouse was ours, and the trenches were full of dead Spaniards.

"It was a grand achievement—for the soldiers who shared it—this storming of the hill leading up from the San Juan river to the ridge before the main fort. We could tell so much at 2,500 yards. But we also knew that it had cost them dear.

"God, what's left of it," he said; "here, fifteen men left out of my company—fifteen out of a hundred."

"We have fought a great battle but we have not taken Santiago yet."

Here is a description of the scenes after the battle:

"This was Saturday, the day after the big fight, and the road was busy both ways. From the front the heavy jolting, six mule ammunition wagons were returning empty after dropping their boxes of cartridges at the firing line.

"Not quite empty, for as they came nearer you saw the awnings of big palm leaves were spread from side to side. And then, when, with a 'Whee hooyah!' and a crack of the long whip and a 'Git in there, darn yer,' from the Texan teamster, the mules swung round from the road up the steep bank into the hospital field, you saw as the wagon tilted that under the palm leaves pale, bandaged men were lying. They groaned in agony as they were sprung from the wagons and jolted.

"For God's sake kill me out of this," screamed a man as he clutched in agony at the palm leaves between him and the sun. It was awful that wounded men should be carried back in such fashion, but then, as some one exclaimed, 'Guess there's a considerable shortage of ambulance traction.' And then there was a certain grim appropriateness to the proceedings of yesterday.

"Our men had been fired as ammunition against intrenchments and positions that should have been taken by artillery. It was quite in keeping that the poor, battered spent bullets should be carried back in the ammunition wagons.

"But besides the wagon there came along from the front men borne on hand litters, some lying face down ward, writhing at intervals in awful convulsions, others lying motionless on the flat of their backs with their hats placed over their faces for shade. And there also came men, dozens of them, painfully limping with one arm thrown over the shoulder of a comrade and the other arm helplessly dangling.

"How much further to the hospital, neighbor?" they would despairingly ask.

"Only a quarter of a mile or so, neighbor," I would answer, and with a smile of hope that at the thought after all they would be able to achieve the journey, they would hobble along.

"But the ammunition wagon and carry them all. For hobbling down the steep bank from the hospital came bandaged men on foot. They sat down for awhile on the bank as far as they could get from the jumble of mules and wagons in the lane, and then setting their faces toward Siboney they commenced—to walk it. They were men whose injuries were too slight for wagon room to be given them. There was not enough space accommodation for the men whose wounds rendered them helplessly prostrate. So let the men who had mere arm and shoulder wounds, simple flesh wounds, or only one injured foot or leg, walked it. Siboney was only eight miles away.

"True, it was a fearfully bad road but then the plain fact was that there was not enough wagons for all, and it was better for these men to be at the base hospital, and better that they should make room at the division hospital, even if they had to make the journey on foot.

"There was one man on the road whose left foot was heavily bandaged and drawn up from the ground. He had provided himself with a sort of rough crutch made of the forked limb of a tree which he had padded with a bundle of clothes. With the assistance of this and a short stick he was padding briskly along when I overtook him.

"Where did they get you, neighbor?" I asked him.

"Oh, darn their skins," he said in the cheerfullest way, turning to me with a smile, "they got me twice—a splinter of a shell in the foot, and a bullet through the calf of the same leg, when I was being carried back from the firing line."

"A sharpshooter?"

"The fellow was up in a tree."

"And you're walking back to Siboney. Wasn't there room for you to ride?" I expected an angry outburst of indignation in reply to this question. But I was mistaken. In a plain, matter-of-fact way he said:

"Guess not. They needed all the room for worse cases 'n mine. Thank God, my two wounds are both in the same leg, so I can walk quite good and spry. They told me I'd be better off down at the landing yonder, so I got these crutches and made a break."

"And how are you getting along?" I asked.

"Good and well, he said as cheerfully as might be, 'just good and easy' and with his one sound leg and two sticks he went cheerfully padding along.

"It was just the same with other walking wounded men. They were all beautifully cheerful. And not merely cheerful. They were all absolutely unconscious that they were undergoing any unnecessary hardships or sufferings. They knew new that was no picnic, and they were not complaining at the absence of picnic fare. Some of them had lain out all the night, with the dew falling on them where the bullets had dropped them, before their turn came with the overworked field surgeons.

"There were only sixty doctors with the outfit," they explained, "and naturally they couldn't tend everybody at once."

"That seemed to them a quite sufficient number of doctors to have been more doctors, more ambulances. Some of them seemed to have a faint glimmering of a notion that there might perhaps have been fewer wounded; but then that was so obvious to everybody. The conditions subsequent to the battle they accepted as the conditions proper and natural to the circumstances.

The cheerful fellow with the improvised crutches was so filled with thankfulness at the possession of his tree branch that it never occurred to him that he had reason to complain of the absence of proper crutches. I happened by chance to know that he had packed away in the Siboney Bay there were cases full of crutches, and I was on the point of blurting out an indignant statement of the fact when I remembered that the knowledge would not make his walk easier. So I said nothing about it.

"I had to make the journey to Siboney myself. There was nothing more than a desultory going on at the front, and I had telegrams to try and get away. So I passed a good many of the walking wounded, and heard a good many groans from palm-awned wagons. The men were, all the same, bravely and uncomplainingly plodding along through the mud. As they themselves put it, they were up against it, and that was all about it.

"And down at Siboney? Well, thank God, the hospital tents had been unloaded. They were short of cots, short of blankets, short of surgeons, short of supplies, short of nurses, short of everything. But thank goodness, by squeezing and crowding and economizing space there was shelter for the men as they came in. And thank goodness too, for the Red Cross Society."

LEPER SCARE

Two Hundred Lepers Escape Confinement at Manila.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 17.—There is a leper scare in Manila. Through the neglect of the Spanish officials nearly 200 lepers have escaped from confinement. For a time this was unknown to the American authorities, and the outcasts were allowed to wander at large. Orders have been issued to the effect that all lepers will be arrested and sent to a small uninhabited island on the southeast of Luzon. On this island the American government will establish a leper colony for the lepers of the Philippines. They will be fed and cared for at the expense of the government.

MATTHEW W. HUGHES,

In His Ninetieth Year.

Leaving Mr. Gady's, as mentioned last week, we went to the home of Matthew Woods Hughes better known all over his section as "Uncle Mack."

We found him sitting in company with his daughter-in-law in the shade of a tree in the front yard of his quiet home, hale and lively, and with the ruddy glow of a man of sixty-five, although he is now in his ninetieth year, and certainly one of the oldest men in Crittenden county.

His father, William Hughes, was born in Marion, Kentucky, on August 4th, 1809.

His father was William Hughes; his mother's maiden name was Nancy Roe. She was twice married, her first husband being Thomas Hughes, a first cousin to William, her second husband.

By her first marriage, she was the mother of the following children: Thomas, Richard, Joseph, Andrew, James, Anell and William, and a daughter, whose name I have not learned. She first married a man named Flynn and after his death, married a Mr. Jones. By this second marriage, she was the mother of James C. Jones, who was county clerk of this county at the time of his death, more than twenty years ago, and of a daughter Mary, now Mrs. Pringle Ford who lives near Crayneville.

So far as I have learned, all the sons of this marriage except Thomas, spent their lives in this county. Thomas married Miss Jane Wheeler, and settled down on a farm southeast of Fredonia, and became one of Caldwell county's most prosperous farmers. He died nearly forty years ago. His only surviving children are James and Frank Hughes who live upon the old homestead, and Mrs. Bell Tinsley, widow of William Tinsley, of Louisville. Jim and Frank, both substantial citizens and most excellent men, live on the old homestead.

Dr. King, now of Princeton, married his sister, Melville, and after her death married a younger sister, Nannie, who died several years ago. The only remaining sister married Thomas Tinsley. An older brother, Thomas, married, and his widow now lives in Fredonia.

So far we have spoken only of the children of Nancy Roe by her first marriage with Thomas Hughes. Her children by her second marriage, with William Hughes, were Matthew W. Hughes, the subject of this sketch, and Benjamin, and a daughter named Nancy who married Alexander Dean, and was the mother of Dr. T. L. Dean, and of those two jolly, bustling boys Job and Al Dean.

Matthew married Clara Hill, a sister of the late Jackson Hill, in 1827, in his eighteen year. That was seventy-one years ago. We would like to hear from all the men and women now living in the county that married so long ago. The nuptial ceremony was performed by Rev. Joseph Kilpatrick a Methodist minister, then well known in this county.

His children have been eight sons and three daughters as follows: William and Andrew J., now living in Illinois; J. Harvey, living near Weston; Thomas in Livingston county, this state; Columbus in Missouri, Marion and Sidney who died in infancy, and Joseph E., who lives upon the old homestead, and, together with his good and dutiful wife, cares for his father in his old age.

His daughters were Araminta, who married William H. Crow, now of Marion, Caroline who married James Duvall, and Ann who married Ben Roach.

How interesting, how thrilling are our venturesome people whose memory extends back almost a century; that have seen an unbroken wilderness transformed into a thriving and prosperous country.

The first school he ever attended was at Suck Spring, now Baker's school house. He has a live recollection of those jolly, rollicking gatherings of the olden time, the militia musters. He attended company muster at the old Alfred Moore place, near Repton, and battalion and regimental muster at Cross Keys, where Pierce Butler now lives.

In answer to a question by Brother Price, he said that he remembers a Methodist minister in his early days named John Johnson. Was this the Rev. John Johnson, who was the father of Dr. Adam Clark Johnson, who lived in Marion and taught school from twenty-five to thirty years ago, and was at one time a member of the county school board? That John Johnson was a very eminent divine in his day, and a collaborator of the celebrated Peter Cartwright.

Mr. Hughes parents came from Chester county, South Carolina, in 1801, and settled near Mt. Zion church. That was forty years before Crittenden county was organized or the ground where Marion now stands was cleared.

Here in this quiet secluded spot, in the midst of interminable forests and pastures of pea-vines, the boy sported and frolicked at a time when the steamboat whistle had never been heard in all the length of the beautiful Ohio; when the flatboatman and keelboatman were in their glory, and the sublime solitudes of that noble river resounded with their merry boat songs, when the hardy pioneer could go out with his old flintlock with a greater certainty of killing a deer in one hour than the Marion sportsman can now feel that he will bring in one poor little quail after a half day's hunt.

Here he passed his youthful days, and grew to man's estate; here he loved and wooed and won a companion that fought life's battle by his side, that cheered him in his success with her noble womanly gratulations, and gave him her sympathy in his hours of misfortune and affliction.

Here in this sylvan retreat, that some rural deities, he has lived that serene, ideal life about which poets sing. Far removed from Mammon's storm centers, the greatest financial temptations have rolled and thundered and lashed the shores of the commercial world, and spent their fury long ere they reached the high and dry ground upon which he stood.

Far from the madding crowd's ignoble strife, His sober wishes never learned to stray Along the cool, sequestered vale of life, He kept the noiseless tenor of his way.

Shaking hands with him and his kind-hearted son and daughter, invoking Heaven's blessings upon them all, with a long extension of this gray haired patriarch's lease of life, we started on a pleasant ride homeward.

IGNOTUS.

Error in Minutes.

To whom it may concern: The members of the Marion Circuit, M. E. Church will take notice that I reported $23.00 in full for benevolence for this circuit and have a receipt for the full amount. But the Conference Treasury made a mistake in his report to the Minutes committee and consequently failed to give me any credit for the $4.00 which I reported for the Board of Church Extension and the $1.00 reported for the Women's Home Missionary Society was credited to the Women's Foreign Missionary Society. I have notified the Treasurer of the mistake and requested him to rectify the mistake in the Minutes of W. C. Advocate. Those who have received a copy of the minutes have doubtless noticed the mistake. Our report this conference year is $1.00 in excess of last year.

The Press.

ISSUED WEEKLY.

R. C. WALKER, Publisher.
ONE YEAR ONE DOLLAR

If the general results of the late election endorse the administration, the result in Kentucky is an endorsement of the new election law.

of the legislature and the legislature chosen elects a United States Senator to succeed Lundy.

If the United States continues to expand, she will be extensive enough by 1900 to maintain the parity of the two money metals, without outside assistance. The goldbugs had better be on guard, or the old thing will slip a cog.

After conquering Spain in war we are to pay her $30,000,000 for the Philippines. Real estate has advanced since Seferson's day. He bought the province of Louisiana, embracing one million square miles of the United States, about one-third of the whole, for half that sum, and didn't have to fight to make the trade either.

Ex-Governor Flower of New York made a speech last week advocating expansion, and the imperialistic newspapers tell us that it is safe to follow his advice, because he is a successful "business man"—he has amassed a fortune. There can be no objection to amassing a fortune, but every man who has amassed a fortune is not a Nestor, and because a man is a millionaire does not always make him a safe leader. The acts of our legislative bodies, both national and state, seem with efforts to shut off the business methods of some of our "successful business men." This class of men is found among those who own the railroads, and we have to legislate in every direction to keep the railroads within the bounds of reason. The big banks are frequently operated by the "successful business men," and yet laws are necessary to curb their avarice; the Standard Oil Company, the American school book trust and other mighty money making institutions are the offspring of the brain of "successful business men" and the problem of the age is legislation that will circumscribe the methods that many of these are using to prey off of the people. Now, it is safe to follow the advice of these men, simply because it comes from that class, in the matter of taking in foreign territory, when we have to hustle to keep them from swallowing up the people in their home country? If there are no considerations in national life outside of amassing fortunes, advice from this source may be safely followed, but if there is more in a nation's or an individual's life than dollars, the millionaire's wisdom may not be worth more than a poor man's fore sight.

Star Pointer, the world's champion pacer, was sold in New York yesterday for $15,000, $600 less than he brought last year.

ARE YOU IN?

The county should have a good road society. An organization of this kind could do much good towards keeping alive and extending the sentiment for better roads already extant.

The articles in the Press have aroused a great deal of interest in this all-important matter, and the paper proposes to keep up the good work. It aided and abetted by an organization composed of all men who favor the improvement of our public highways, even if it costs a little extra money.

It is not only the movement of the people, but the movement of the papers and books and all other kinds of literature upon this subject will materially assist in moulding public opinion, and creating a determination to move us to any expenditure of money or muscle to get them. Then there are those of us who care little or nothing about the matter; our fathers and grandfathers traveled the old muddy, rocky roads before us and made no complaint, and we are no better than they. Then some of us, gentle reader, do not know the difference between a good road and a bad one, and care less; with us a road is a road, if it "Stands still And goes to mill."

Shake us all up in a bag together, and we will find that public sentiment for good roads is no stronger than a Kansas New Year's egg nog.

A good road society, club, or guild can do much to remedy this defect. A winter's study and discussion of the question might bring some good—a winter's setting might hatch a valuable spring chicken.

Our schools are improving, our church spires are growing taller, our farms are better than they were twenty years ago, why not fill up some of the ruts and scrape off some of the bumps in our roads?

If you are "in" a quarter or two—if necessary—to defray the expenses of a club, and will attend as many as three meetings a year, and assist in the good work, send in your name, and when a hundred names are in, a public meeting will be called and shape given to the work. Remember, this "quarter or two, if necessary," is not to build a turn-pike from the sombre hues of autumn to the sweet perfumes of May, but to be used in convincing each that the other is really for good roads.

A—e you in?

Circuit Court.

Harmon Acquitted and Murphy on Trial for Murder

The case of the Commonwealth against Charles Murphy for killing Thomas Lindsay is now on trial, and will probably reach the jury some time today.

Monday was spent in impaneling the jury, and Tuesday morning the twelve men had been selected. They were: C. W. Fox, W. J. Allen, F. M. Jones, W. F. Jennings, W. D. James, J. W. Custard and W. F. Jacobs.

Ed. Harmon who has been in jail since the last term of court to answer an indictment charging him with rape, was acquitted by the jury.

The H. B. Fox case, in which Fox and others are charged with causing a false arrest of Cas. Monan was continued by the Commonwealth on account of the absence of witnesses Cas Monan, Ed Waide, Ben Peek, Jr., Oscar Anderson and Mrs. Ann Gray.

The case against Frank Jacobs, charged with malicious shooting, was continued by defendant, and an attachment issued for Tom Sleamaker.

The cases against Claude Henry and others, confederating etc., were continued by the Commonwealth, and attachments issued for Obe Burgess and wife.

An allowance of $75 each was made for the following persons as pauper idiots: Evers, Holloman, Finny Aarons, Oscar Dares, Ruby James.

Twenty Five Indictments.

The grand jury adjourned Tuesday after returning twenty-five indictments, as follows: Burning barn 1; malicious shooting 2; flourishing pistol 1; disturbing worship 3; concealed weapons 2; trespass 4; detaining a woman 1; assault and battery 1; petit larceny 1; breach of the peace 1; failing to deliver money to successor in office 1; selling liquor without license, 7.

Ready For Business.

The big steamship purchased from A. H. Cardin has been overhauled and re-motored, and Mr. Jarvis, the new man, now has everything in readiness to receive and handle tobacco. His buyer will visit as many of the tobacco raisers as possible, and he will be glad to look at all samples brought to the steamery. If you have a crop to sell bring in a sample for his inspection.

New York, Nov. 22.—Thousands witnessed the fight tonight at the Lenox Athletic Club between James J. ## HANING AT EDDYVILLE.

Cato Will Pay the Penalty of His Crime Friday at 1 o'clock.

Will Cato, the young man, who in conjunction with his partner in crime, murdered an old shanty-boat man on the Cumberland river several months ago, will be hung at Eddyville tomorrow. The crime was one of the blackest on the criminal records of Southern Kentucky, and if ever a man deserved hanging, Cato went to prison for life; he was the younger of the two, and this probably saved his neck. A big crowd is expected in Eddyville that day.

The Eddyville Tale says: The prisoner will be executed at 1 o'clock p. m., on the state's ground, just back of the prison wall where the scaffold is now being erected.

DEMAND FOR CORN.

MODOC'S MELODIES.

TOLU, KY., Nov. 15, '98.

The Teachers Reading Club at this place Saturday was a failure. The county president failed to appoint a vice president, or either the appointee failed to put in an appearance; therefore nothing could be done.

A great many people have steered a good way north of our good opinion, but not so in the above case. Gather up the fragments that nothing.

A certain old bachelor at this place is still creating quite a sensation, yet at the same time some people have about as much ideas about an old back as an oyster. "Shall a man be banished from society on account of his age or from the fact that he is polite to everybody that he meets; common sense and decency says nix. When I am laid in my grave I wish to be stretched at my full length, that I may occupy every inch of ground I have a right to.—Selsh.

Thoughts that are the spontaneous result of accidental situations, either respecting health, place or company have often a strength and always an originality that would in vain be looked for in fancied circumstances and studied paragraphs. No to find them in their precious importance and divine efficacy we must search among the obscure recesses of disappointments, affliction, poverty, distress and bachelors.—Rat.

Duty performed never fails of its reward in some way.

The ages will sweep on and—rift the hills, roll the waters, dash the lightnings, weigh the sun, but Modoc still carries baskets of grapes sweeter than the grapes of Eschol to his best girl that is by far sweeter than the grapes. Who could behold or see her superior charms, fine intelligence and not love? Who could love and be silent; grapes or no grapes, bachelor or no bachelor.

Some people seem to have only a front porch knowledge of a few things and can not even dovetail their ideas into anything that would edify anybody or anything. So mote it be.

Old man Quantrell and old Champ Ferguson better known down here as Dr. A. S. H. Boyd and S. A. Marks, concede the election of Wheeler to Congress by a small majority, but are in battle array for the next fellow that comes along without the pass word.

Before we close we must say with out any reluctance on our part that we have one of the best schools that this correspondent has ever had the privilege of visiting. Prof. C. B. Hine and Mrs. Mamie Gress deserve a great deal of credit and praise for their splendid work and management of the school. Will give the grade and general average of the school next week; also the grade and average of the old bachelors of this town ship in another epistle later on. If Spartacus has not renewed his youth it is no fault of Modoc.

A first class meal at any hour at Hearin's.

CHURCH MATTERS.

A Good Meeting.

I closed a good meeting at Caldwell Spring, Nov. 16, which continued eleven days. I had the assistance of Eld. J. W. Oliver who did most of the preaching, and did well to the satisfaction of the church and congregation; the song services were conducted by Bro. Leslie Holt, of Lyon county, who did his work well. We had 14 professions and 11 baptisms and a glorious revival. I have this grand old church in the last two meetings. We have as fine a band of young people in this church as I ever saw who are doing good work for the Master. I have been pastor of this church for eight years with an interval of one year. The church is in a prosperous condition, to God be all the praise. I go next week to assist Bro. Oliver at Blooming Grove, Livingston county. W. R. GIBBS

Ed. PRESS:—We would be glad to publish to the world through your columns what the Lord has done for us. We began a protracted meeting at Blackburn church on the fourth Sabbath in October, Bro. W. C. Moore pastor. The meeting commenced on the first week without promising results, but the Lord was unshaking his hosts, the Christians were alive to the work, as was manifested by their earnest labors, fervent prayers and untiring zeal. On the fifth Sabbath night, Eld. D. E. Bentley, of Piney Creek church came to assist us; when through his earnest preaching and the deep earnest work of the church and people united, the Lord descended in the power of his might and spirit and dwelt among us; sinners were made to tremble and feel the power of the Lord, and mourners to cry out "what shall I do to be saved?" and twenty one made to feel they were saved. The meeting closed on Friday, the 13th day from commencement, at the water on old Piney creek, where we had met to attend to the ordinance of baptism, where Bro. Bentley delivered a discourse on its mode, after which B. O. Moore led nine of the little boys and girls down into its waters and buried them beneath its liquid waves. The nine baptised were Kate McChesney, Nonnie Stenbridge, Phronie Stenbridge, Effie and Dora Brown, Alpha McConnell, Richard McDowell, Luther McConnell and Harry Eaker, all of them young boys and girls who will come on and take the places of the old when their work is done. We had a most glorious revival and the church built up, showing that when Zion travels she shall bring forth sons and daughters in honor and glory to God.

KATE MCCHESNEY.
LAURA STENBRIDGE.

The pastor Rev. R. A. Lakus will begin a meeting at Crooked Creek church next Sunday. Rev. J. S. Miller is expected to assist.

We call special attention to our new calicoes, percales, flannel outing, novelties in dress goods.—Woods & Fowler.

MARION GRADED SCHOOL BOYS

Making Their Mark at the State College.

L. D. Threlkeld, of Salem, and A. F. Crider, of this place, completed the high school course in the Marion Graded School at the close of last term, and went to the State College at Lexington together in September, and are rooming together. The college boys are divided into two literary societies—the Union and the Patterson. Crider became a member of the Union and Threlkeld of the Patterson. At a public meeting of each society a member of each is chosen by contest of declamatory powers, and then there is a similar contest between those two for the honor of representing the State College at the intercollegiate declamatory contest. Over three competitors last week Crider won the medal of the Union society, and Threlkeld carried off similar honors of the Patterson society. On December 9, these two meet to measure lances to determine which shall represent the college in a contest with other colleges of the State.

Marion Graded School from the principal to the pupils in first grade, is naturally very proud of Lal and Albert and the honors they have won. The standing these two boys have reached so early in their college career not only speaks well of their own prowess, but it shows the kind of work Marion Graded School is doing. Last year Perry Maxwell, another graduate of our high school, won similar honors, and also won second medal at the intercollegiate contest. By their fruits ye shall know the State.

We are headquarters for fruits, nuts, cranberries, of all kinds, fresh oysters and celery.

BURGLARIES.

The Sheriff's Safe Ransacked Monday Night. Haynes' Drug Store Broken Into Saturday Night.

Saturday night burglars entered R. F. Haynes' drug store and took a dollar or two from the money drawer, and a small quantity of goods. The lock to his safe was tampered with, but the door was not opened. The burglar or burglars got into the building by getting on top of the ware room, going through a window in the second story into Dr. Clark's office, removing the lock to the office door, and then the way was clear to the store room below.

Monday night the sheriff's office in the court house was entered through a window. The big iron safe was unlocked, and the burglar went through the various papers therein. He found no money, but carried away a small steel drawer containing a lot of papers, in shape of receipts, that are valuable to the sheriff, but worthless to the burglar. The small iron door to the inside drawer was picked.

As we propose to dress and ship direct East, we have no fear in saying that we can and will make it to the interest of all persons having turkeys for sale to hold until we get into the field.

"COLORED COLORS."

How Mineral Hues Are Enlivened by the Addition of Coal Tar Colors.

The denomination of "colored colors" may sound paradoxical, but as a matter of fact mineral colors are frequently met with of late whose dull and little productive character is rendered more fiery and richer by an addition of coal-tar colors. In general, no objection can be made to such a procedure, says the Male-Zeitung, if colors sufficiently fast to light are chosen, is well possible nowadays. But very often this is not done. Thus the eosines used for carmine are very fugitive; likewise coloring with fuchsine and aniline blue fades in the light. If one wants to employ artificial organic coloring matters for fining, faster ones should be employed. According to M. Bottler, the rather fast rhodamines next methylene blue and melolida blue, which are very fast, deserve a preference. Against the use of ponceau, eosines and eosinates, which for the most part are not inferior as regards fastness to the eosinates, whose place they have taken, less objection can be raised. Since it has been established by the above-mentioned observations that coloring with coal-tar colors of carmine, velvet red, purple, cinnabar red (vermillion) and chrome red such artificial organic coloring matters are also employed as are liable to fade quickly this fact should be given sufficient attention in practice. Carmine is frequently used, prepared with turpentine and English varnish, as a carriage color; likewise vermillion and chrome red.

A BRAVE INVENTOR.

Striking Characteristics of the Remarkable Man Who Invented Dynamite.

Alfred Nobel, the remarkable man who invented dynamite, is thus described by Henry De Moseenthal in the Nineteenth Century.

"Physically weak, of a nervous, highly strung and exceptionally sensitive disposition, he was endowed with a strong will, unbounded energy and wonderful perseverance; he feared no danger, and never yielded to adversity. Many would have succumbed under similar circumstances to the most serious of almost insurmountable difficulties, the explosion of his factory causing a general scene and dread of the deadly compound he was making, the loss of his youngest brother, to whom he was devotedly attached; the consequent paralysis of his old father, and his mother's grief and anxiety could not deter him from pursuing his aim. "The coexistence of impulsive daring and sensitive timidity was a striking feature in his character. He frequently demonstrated the value and safety of his explosives with his own hands, although he was particularly susceptible to headaches caused by bringing nitroglycerin into contact with the skin. They affected him so violently that he was often obliged to lie down on the ground in the mine or quarry in which he was experimenting. On one occasion when some dynamite could not be removed from a large cask he crept into it and dug the explosive out with a knife."

NEW METHOD OF POACHING.

Fish Are Killed by the Simple Firing of a Rifle Bullet into the Water.

In England, where the game and fish laws are much more strictly observed than in this country, the "poacher" on forbidden waters, who is too anxious to escape discovery to spend the time necessary to catching fish with a rod and line, will drop a dynamite cartridge into a river hole and after exploding it will scoop up a bagful of fish, which have floated to the surface from the concussion. An Italian officer, Maj. Michellini, who has been investigating the qualities of bullet and rifles, has discovered that fish can be killed more easily than even by the dynamite cartridge. The Italian rifle, which is but 256 inch in diameter, proved very deficient in stopping power at the battle of Adowa. Nevertheless at short ranges the very high velocity of the bullet gives rise to a powerful explosive effect. Maj. Michellini one day fired one of these guns into the water at an angle of about 45 degrees. A dead fish almost immediately rose to the surface. On examination no wound was discovered in the body, the death being due entirely to the hydraulic shock arising from the impact of the bullet with the water. This view was amply confirmed by further experiments, and many fish were killed by the blow of the bullet on the water exactly as if by an explosion of a dynamite shell. The effects of the hydraulic shock seemed to be sufficient to kill all fish within two feet to two feet six inches of the point of impact.

Sensible Government.

The government of Belgium has issued an order that every newspaper in the country is entitled to free use of every railroad. The business of news-gathering the government regards as of great importance to the development of the nation. The governments following this sensible and up-to-date view will find a free press of even more use than a standing army.

POWER IN WATER.

How a Little Mountain Brook in New York State Is Made to Give Up Light and Power.

The ease with which small streams of water can be turned to account for supplying electric light and power is well illustrated in an installation which has been completed at a sanitarium in the heart of the Sullivan county mountains, where a saving in fuel would naturally be of exceptional desirability. A brook which flows through the property is part of the headwaters of the Delaware river. It has a fall of 70 feet on the estate, but it is at best an exceedingly small stream. In order to get the water storage it was necessary to build a dam 250 feet across and 20 feet high. This made a basin of nearly a mile in area, and holds water enough to run the entire plant 35 days without rain. The dam was built entirely of stone masonry on the site. The sanitarium consists of six large frame buildings, built on various hills, and included in a radius of half a mile. Not only are all these buildings generously lighted within, but the grounds and walks are studied with 100-hour long-burning arcs, and the tourist coming suddenly on this distant mountain nook could imagine himself in a city suburb. The plant is running so successfully that it would seem worth the while of any large institution or other requiring light and power to investigate any water power no matter how unpretentious—in the vicinity. Such an installation as that mentioned should, with ordinary management, very quickly pay for itself in the saving of fuel and other advantages.

THE HOUSE OF SEVEN GABLES.

A Recent Visitor Says That an Irishman Occupies It, and Will Not Admit Visitors.

While waiting a few minutes for my train, I regretted that I could not give a day to Salem, but must reserve it for a later pilgrimage, says a correspondent of the Chicago Post, I talked to a droll, pessimistic Irishman standing by the tunnel which rushes up from the center of the city. In this very shadow of venerable grayness he recommended the Marine museum as the feature of the place. He said Witch hill was nothing but rocks and tenement houses.

Hawthorne's house is lived in by Pat Wright and is a shabby front, with little paint left upon it. The tenant will not let tourists in, declaring that he would be tormented to death if he did. He turned away 25 college people in a body. It must have done Pat's soul good to shut out so much learning.

"The very last lot that he did let in," explained the Irishman, "told him he had no business to eat in the same room that Hawthorne ate in."

"Now, that settles it," said Pat. "Not another mother's son sets foot in my door to tell me where to eat."

"Yes, sir," continued the Irishman, "you can see the house where the witches were tried, and you can see the house of the seven gables, but there's no much to it except the seven gables."

THE MIDDLE-AGED MAN.

He Discovers Some What Interesting by the Children's Joy of Swinging on the Gate.

"On the occasion of a recent visit to a sister city," said the middle-aged man, according to the New York Sun, "I was, as I watched a youngster swinging on a gate, almost startled by the reflection that in such cities our own most children never know what it is to swing on a gate, for the simple reason that they have no gates here to swing on."

"But in smaller cities and towns every boy swings on the gate. I remember very well swinging on the gate when I was a boy. We used to open the gate and pretend it would go and stand as near as possible to the outer edge of it so as to get the longest possible swing, and then step up and let it go. The latch would snap over the holder on the gate post as we swung back, and then we'd swing back, and so on, back and forth, the number of times depending on the weight of the child. Not infrequently two children would swing on the same gate; a perilous and exciting experience for them. If they were little boys, and one that they enjoyed hugely. But while it was fun for the children it was bad for the gate. Only the most robust and well-constructed gate in the heaviest sort of fence could stand it, and even such gates finally came, with the rest, to sag. The sagging gate marked a house blessed with children."

Victoria's Pagoda.

It is not generally known that at Osborne there is a garden cottage in the shape of a pagoda, where none may enter except her majesty. This cottage holds nothing but mementoes of the late prince consort and relics of the queen's youth, as well as the toys and games of all her children, many of which the prince consort made himself, for he was no mean carpenter. There are also here wonderful fishes caught by the duke of Coburg in Canadian waters, as well as the toys of the prince of Wales while in India, a mummy case brought from Egypt and other precious curiosities that are dearly prized by the queen, who visits this family museum every day while at Osborne and sits among the remains of her own and her children's youth.

Gladstone Wept.

Mr. Gladstone during the delivery of one of his great orations concerning the Bulgarian atrocities was so carried away by his feelings that tears coursed down his cheeks, and the flow of his eloquence was arrested for a few minutes, that he might recover his composure.

We tried in vain everything that we could hear of, but we thought would help him, and almost gave up in despair when some one advised us to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. We did so and the first bottle gave so much relief that we got a second one, and to our surprise it cured him sound and well.—J. T. Bays, pastor of Christian church, Neodesha, Kan. ### BRAKEMEN AS OCULISTS.

Ease with Which They Remove Cinders Largely Increases Their Income.

The ease with which brakemen on railroad trains remove from passengers' eyes cinders which fly into them every time the engine sends out a puff of smoke is a cause for comment. On a New York Central train running between here and Niagara Falls is a young man who is a genius and an oculist, and his services are in great demand. It is whispered among the trainhands that his income is very largely increased by his ability to operate on passengers so afflicted, and that gratitude after the removal of the disturbing cinder is not measured and his largesse is real and in proportion to the pain borne by the sufferer, says the New York Herald.

A young man who wore the uniform of the New York Central service with whom I talked recently told me that he was kept busy all the train had crossed the Harlem bridge in removing cinders.

"They accumulate in the tunnel," he said, "and I always walk through the train after we leave the One Hundred and Thirty-eighth street station and relieve the sufferers. But that time they have succeeded in rubbing the cinder into a bad corner and are ready for any kind of treatment. When I first went to railroad I discovered that it would be a good thing to know something about removing cinders, so I went to an oculist and took a few courses of lessons. As a result I am able to remove the most stubborn one without trouble or pain to the patient. Yes, I have earned the amount I paid the oculist for the lessons many times over."

AMERICANS ARE GIANTS.

That is the impression of the Little People Who Inhabit the Philippines.

The Puerto Ricans, who as a rule are rather undersized, have reached the conclusion that Americans are giants. This idea is largely due to the fact that in the first regiments landed at Ponce extremely tall men predominated. A correspondent of the New York Sun writes: "Among the big and handsome men of Gen. Wilson's staff is Maj. Hoyle, the ordnance officer. He is tall and although trim of figure solid. He stepped into a native shop recently to get some matches. After he had been waited on and was about to go out the proprietor beckoned him to him. The major, Maj. Hoyle, was such a back country storekeeper in America would use to indicate that he wanted you to step into a back room and try a nip of moonshine whisky. Maj. Hoyle says he has accepted such invitations frequently, but upon this occasion it was his intention to refuse, and he was brushing up the Spanish in his mind to say so when the man's manner overcame his scruples and he followed him in. They went through a winding passage and presently emerged into a back apartment. Here, however, instead of finding a bottle of whisky clear as water, such as the moonshiner makes, there stood some platform scales, and the shopkeeper, with anxious look, motioned for Maj. Hoyle to step upon it. Maj. Hoyle may have been disappointed, but he did not betray it, and, being good-natured, he got upon the scales. The native manipulated the weights until the scale balanced at 195 pounds. Then with wide open eyes he looked over the fine proportions of the major and exclaimed in wonder: 'Mueha! Mueha!'"

CHINESE ENJOY BEHEADING.

The Execution of Rebels is Made a Festive Affair for Women and Children.

According to late Vancouver (B. C.) mail advices from China eight sub-ordinate leaders of the Kwangsi rebellion have been beheaded at Wu Chow. Through the principal streets as a warning spectacle amid the laughter and cheers of men, women and children. Ten thousands of people witnessed the decapitation and made it a gala day. The children copied their parents who joked at the dying rebels as they passed before the ax fell. When all was over the children played among the headless, bleeding corpses and made sport with the black, disfigured heads.

Mandarins and headmen improvised a sort of May pole and the heads of the rebels were placed on top in tiers, the children dancing around them. The governor advised the mandarins to make the beheading as festive as possible, so as to inspire disgust for the rebels in the hearts of the people. A banquet was afterward spread.

The Japan Mail says a petition has been sent to the government by foreign consuls requesting that beheading be discontinued.

Extraordinary Marriage Vow.
An English rural clergyman says that in his parish it was quite the fashion for the man, when giving the ring in the marriage ceremony, to say to the woman: "With my body I thee worship, and with all my worldly goods I thee endow." He said the women were better up in this part of the service than the men. One day, however, a bride started him by promising, in what she supposed to be the language of the Prayer book, to take her husband "to have and to hold from this day forth for better for worse, for richer for poorer, in sickness and in health, to love and cherish and to obey." What meaning this extraordinary vow conveyed to the woman's own mind, the incumbent said, baffled him to conjecture.
